THE CAMP WILL ACT.

THE CHICAGO LETTER TO BE CON-

SIDERED TO-MORROW NICHT. The Prevailing Impression That Dr. Cave's Oration Will Be Endorsed—Colonel

Lawrence and His Letters. The indications are that the meeting of Lee Camp to-morrow night will be the most interesting that has been held for a long time. It is not certain, however, that the letter from a Chicago Grand Army post, which created such a stir at the last meeting, will again the discussed. The letter was laid on the table, and cannot be taken up unless called up, Some of the members are in favor of allowing it to stay where it is-that is, are in favor of treating it with silent contempt. Others think a reply is demanded, and that the reply ought to be that the camp does not answer impertinent in-

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

The members of the camp who heard the letter read are still reticent as to its contents, and opinion seems to be divided as to its tone. On the one hand, it is heard that the communication is insulting and threatening; on the other, that it is sugar-coated. An effort is still being made to keep the name of the army post a secret, but it was stated last night that it was the Columbian, a number of whose members visited Richmond when the Grand Army held its annual meeting in Washington two or three years ago.

It is certain, however, that Commander Pollard's resolution that the camp endorse Mr. Cave's address will be taken up. This resolution was offered near the close of the last meeting and laid upon the table until the meeting to-morrow night. And it is equally certain, it is said, that the camp will endorse the address in uncomplified terms. qualified terms.

It is also said that the name of Colonel A. B. Lawrence, of Warsaw, N. Y., whose picture was taken down from the walls of Pickett Camp Monday night will be heard at Lee Camp to-morrow night. LETTERS FROM COLONEL LAW-RENCE.

RENCE.

Colonel Lawrence was among the Grand Army men who visited the city when the Grand Army encampment was held in Washington, though he was not connected with any Chicago post. He was introduced here by the late Colonel M. E. Bradley, of Phil Kearny Post as the man who was designated by General Grant at Appomattox Courthouse to distribute rations to Lee's yeterans after the sur-Grand Army encampment was net of the Mashington, though he was not connected with any Chicago post. He was introduced here by the late Colonel M. E. Rradley, of Phil Kearny Fost as the man who was designated by General Grant at Appomattox Courthouse to distribute rations to Lee's veterans after the surrender, and was entertained by mennebers of Lee Camp. Colonel Alexander W. Shortly after the unveiling of the Confederate Soldiers' and Sallors' monument Colonel Archer received a letter from Colonel Lawrence asking him if the people endorsed the sentiments of General Rosser and others. Mr. Cave's name was not mentioned. Colonel Archer's reply was to the point, and this drew another long letter from Colonel Lawrence.

The three letters last mentioned were read by Colonel Archer to a Dispatch representative last night, but the Colonel said he could not allow them to be published. He said while Colonel Lawrence's letters were such as he would not have

The correspondence was entirely previous and in view of their previous inter-change of leiters he had no doubt Colonel Lawrens— thought he was privileged to ask the questions he had propounded. Soon after Colonel Lawrence returned home he sent both Lee and Pickett camps photographs of himself, and these were lang on the walls of the respective or-

A FRIEND OF EDUCATION.

The School Journal's Kind Words Abou Senator Lovenstein. The June number of the Virginia School

Journal prints an excellent portrait of Senator Lovenstein, and in its highly complimentary sketch of the Richmond Senator says:

Senator says:

"His twenty-five years of service in the Legislature have been characterized by singular devotion to the best interests of his constituency and the Commonwealth. He is held in the highest esteem by his conferers in the Senate, and is acknowledged to be one of the ablest and most active members of the body. As chairman of the Committee on Public Institutions and Education, through a series of years, he has rebutered distinguished service to the cause of public education. In the struggle for the establishment of State normal schools, Mr. Lovenstein endeared himself to all who hold enlightened views touching public education by warmly expousing the cause of these schools. He has ever evinced a lively interest in their welfare. For some years he has been a member of the Board of Visitors of the State Female Normal School, in which position he has labored unceasingly to advance the best interests of the school. For a number of years he has been an efficient member of the School Board of Richmod City, and for several years he has been vice-chairman of the board. His deep interest in every movement looking to the advancement of the Richmond schools is well known. Himself a patron of THE GRAYS' BAZAAR.
